

I recently heard about a proposal to expand Low Power FM stations. If my understand is correct, this proposal would allow new LPFM stations to take priority over current FM translator services. I am concerned about this because I believe FM translators provide a valuable service.

I have lived in two cities where I received FM translated stations K-LOVE and Air One. These stations provide a Christian alternative to secular music. I believe these stations provide a valuable service to the many communities which receive them. Many cities would have no Christian music stations if it were not for K-LOVE and/or Air One. Many people are helped every day by the positive message that these stations present. I personally enjoy the music and am glad for a radio station that I can let my kids listen to without worrying what the DJ's might say or what message the music is conveying. I urge you not to take any action that might hurt the ability of FM translator stations to stay on the air. Thank you.
